

Message from Treasurer

The office of the Treasurer is the center of all financial management of North South University (NSU) under the Private University Act (PUA 2010) of Bangladesh. Treasurer is appointed by the Chancellor, the Honorable President of the People's Republic of Bangladesh, for four years, based on the recommendation of the Board of Trustees. Treasurer is third in executive hierarchy and works directly under the supervision of Vice-Chancellor and Board of Trustees at NSU. The Office of Finance and Accounts works directly under the supervision of the Treasurer, and all financial dealings, big and small, are processed through the Treasurer's office. Since most of the administrative and academic matters have strong financial elements, the Treasurer's office holds one of the most important positions in North South University.

The Treasurer is responsible for the overall management of university funds, formulation of annual budget, overseeing accounts and financial dealings and restoring financial discipline. Private universities of Bangladesh are non-profit based organizations, and considering the fact that the number of private universities has surpassed the number of public universities over time, the Treasurer plays a crucial role in ensuring financial solvency and quality of financial transactions. In the absence of Vice-Chancellor and Pro-Vice Chancellor, the responsibilities are assumed by the Treasurer. Therefore, the Treasurer's role is vital in the formulation and implementation of major financial reform and policies that can take the university to the global standard in terms of financial management.

Thank you.
